

Little Dinner Series Ticket Launch FAQ

Thank you for your excitement and continued support of the Little Dinner Series! Our ticket releases generate a high volume of interest, and many of the same questions come up each semester. We hope this FAQ helps answer them.

Why are tickets already sold out?

Our dinners are extremely popular and often sell out within the first few minutes of ticket release. We know this can be disappointing, and we truly appreciate the enthusiasm and support for our student-run events.

Should I check back after tickets sell out?

Yes! Eventbrite automatically releases tickets that remain in inactive shopping carts after approximately 45 minutes.

If the event sells out immediately, we recommend checking back around 10:45 a.m., as a small number of tickets may become available again.

Do I need a promo code to purchase tickets?

No. Tickets are available to the public without a promo code.

If Eventbrite displays "Sold Out" or "Tickets Unavailable," the event has reached capacity.

Are there presales, memberships, or insider access?

No. We do not offer public presales, memberships, or early access programs.

The only reserved tickets are a limited number allocated to the student management team leading each dinner. Each event is planned and executed by a team of 7–8 students, and each student may reserve up to two tickets for family or friends to attend the event they helped create. Promo codes are used only for this internal reservation process.

I didn't get tickets. Is there a waitlist?

Yes! We encourage everyone to join our waitlist.

Each dinner typically has a small number of cancellations. When tickets become available, guests are selected at random from the waitlist and contacted directly by email.

Can I update my guest names or dietary accommodations?

Yes. Guest names and dietary information can be updated through the Tickets section of your Eventbrite account.
