As you emerge from these woods, hunger satiated and thirst quenched, know that the big bad wolf lurks envious. You’ll be enchanted to find that Jack’s friend, the giant, has graciously paved a rather grand path for you to follow, and your pumpkin carriage is being brought around the front at this very moment. And while we’re not too sure what’s so good about goodbye’s, we trust that as you lay your head to sleep tonight in that tall tower chamber, your dreams will come alive with memories of your journey Into the Woods. The witch has a way with time; we know we’ll be seeing you again very soon.
